Harriet Tubman
By: Andrew Dolgner

Raised as a slave
She was also super brave.
While her sisters were sold,
Her mother became more bold.

Inspired by Moses' story
Her goal was not fame or glory,
But just to set all slaves free
And change all of humanity.

Forced to work at a young age
Mistakes would make the owners rage.
About to be sold, she decided to escape.
In her mind, freedom was starting to take shape.

She was guided on the underground railroad
And each house had a different code.
After her freedom was gained,
She went back for those who remained.

Although this was a dangerous task,
She decided to put back on her mask.
Going back to save many more
She knew it was right inside her core.

Reunited with her family after seven years,
She became a spy in the army - without any fears.
Her dreams finally all came true.
She inspires me. How about you?
