She Will - A poem dedicated to Malala Youzfzai
By: Emory Klam

Stuck in a world where girls can't learn and gender is all they see.
Where women walk behind men of their own kind she could not let this be.

Standing up for rights with a raging fire
they wanted her to agree.
The Taliban tried but the flame never died she would not let this be.

Pursuing her beliefs beyond what others think so all children can learn free.
Speaking for generations across the nations she will now make this be.
